

David Albanese was raised in Oxnard he is a father of three, an entrepreneur and businessman. Albanese has been building on his entrepreneur ideas since he was eleven years old, when he started his first business selling "shaved ice desserts" in his neighborhood during the hot summer days. Albanese's dream became a reality in his twenty; his entrepreneurial spirits pushed him to open a real estate and mortgage loan companies.

Albanese has spent thousand of hours mentoring and giving free advice to first time homeowners and helping families achieve the American Dream. The American Dream for David has hit closer to him as a father. Albanese believes that future generations will be affected if we do not fight for the ideals of owning a home and supporting the entrepreneur spirit.

When asked why he is running for Councilman, Albanese states, "America was built on individuals who break barriers, individuals who are willing to lead and individual who are willing to sacrifice life itself."

Albanese is a well-rounded individual who understand business, management, education and public policy. Government is a business of the people and should therefore be managed in the best interest of its stakeholders, the citizens and community!
